Split ruling on police issues

Arbitrator sides with city on 2 of 3 points

By Bob Slat

Staff writer

City police officers may have to pay out-of-pocket expenses for health care under their insurance plan with the city, but the officers will also receive salary increases to compensate for those expenses. That is the effect of a ruling issued by an arbitrator in a proposed contract between Granite City and its police officers. The arbitrator ruled in favor of the city on two issues and agreed with the union on one issue in the contract proposal between the city and the officers, members of American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Local 3477. The proposed pact, if accepted by both parties, would be retroactive to May 1, 1992, and remain in effect until April 30, 1994. After months of negotiations, the city and the police officers' union had tentatively agreed to a contract in January of this year. But the union membership failed to ratify the tentative agreement.

An arbitrator, appointed by the state Labor Relations Board, was asked to rule on three issues on which the parties disagreed — wages, sick leave and health insurance. The arbitrator rendered his decision May 7, finding in favor of the city on the sick leave and health insurance issues and in favor of the union on the question of a wage increase.

The parties now must either accept the arbitrator's decision or challenge it in appellate court. According to the decision, the police officers will experience a 5 percent out-of-pocket expense under the city's health insurance plan in the form of a higher deductible and co-payments. But the officers will receive salary increases of 4 percent in the first year and another 3.5 percent in the second year of the contract.

The arbitrator called the parties' proposals for changes in the contract. (See RULING, Page 2A)

The circus is coming to town! The annual Anad Shrine Circus will begin at Niedringhaus and State Street and proceed east on Niedringhaus and north on Madison Avenue to 29th Street. It will disband in the high school parking lot. Ed Morton is the parade chairman. Dave McCann is potpourri of Anad Shrine. Circus performances are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. both Thursday and Friday. Circus tickets, which are available from any Shriner or at area Schuck's stores, cost $5 in advance. Tickets may also be purchased at the gate for $6. Each circus ticket admits one adult or two children under 12. The circus benefits Anad Shrine in East St. Louis, one of 191 Shrine temples in North America that support 19 orthopedic hospitals and three burn centers offering free care to children. Anad Shrine has a membership of more than 7,000 members from 37 counties in Southern Illinois.

Teacher gets grant for Indian art project

By Mike Myers

Staff writer

The first inhabitants of this area, the Mississippian Indians, were creators of beautiful pottery made in the images of humans and animals. This "clay art sculpture" is second to none in the world, sculptor Antonio Betancourt says. Living in the midst of the Mississippian's hunting and gathering grounds, it seems a shame that there is so little opportunity to study it, he said. But Betancourt, who teaches art and English at Granite City High School, said that to learn about a work of art, especially one that's three-dimensional, students should be able to study it inside and out for a long period of time. "Students can look at pictures and slides," he said. "But there is no substitute for being able to hold it right in your hands, being able to turn it over, turn it Antonio Betancourt around, have it sit right in front of you as you work." This summer, Betancourt is going to use a competitive fellowship he was awarded by the Arts Education Fellowship (See ART, Page 3A)

Pepper mace now important police tool

By Shay Wessol

Staff writer

A new tool for area police is a thousand times worse than a taste of cayenne pepper and guaranteed to bring unruly suspects to their knees — without any permanent injuries. This month, 13 officers of the Madison County Sheriff's Department hit the streets with pepper mace in their holsters. They joined a number of other departments across the state — including Granite City — in using what officers say has become an effective crime-fighting tool. Other area police departments, as well as the Illinois State Police, hope to arm all their officers with the spray, said Chief Deputy Bud Galloway. "The idea is to use the minimum amount of force necessary to maintain the upper hand against an opponent," Galloway said. "Pepper mace is both for the officer's protection and the suspect's." Pepper mace, or oleoresin capicum, is an oily resin extracted from cayenne pepper. Unlike regular mace, pepper mace is all natural, biodegradable and approved by the Food and Drug Administration. The product is also legal for public use. Capt. Dave Ruebhausen of the Granite City Police Department said pepper mace has been effective in combative situations. "We're very pleased with it," he said. "We've had great success with it, and it has reduced injury to combative suspects and, I believe, reduced officer injuries in resisting arrest-type situations." The Granite City department began using the new product in November 1992 after the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the St. Louis City Municipal Police Department adopted its use. All Granite City police officers are now required to carry a canister of pepper mace, and urged to use it before resorting to nightsticks or other objects that may cause injury. (See MACE, Page 12A)

Finding work will be chore for many

More and more high school graduates are aiming for additional education even if they aren't setting their sights on four-year degrees, according to high school counselors. In recent years, increasing numbers of students have headed for community colleges, vocational or technical schools or special training programs after high school, counselors said. "A vast majority of our students, probably 80 percent, tell us they are going to go on to some sort of higher education program, either college or vocational," said Sonya Adkerson, coordinator of guidance, special education, vocational and special needs at Granite City High School. "We don't have any statistics on how many actually complete a program of study, but that is their plan." Adkerson said she is currently working with a number of employer placement requests, but that most are for part-time or summer work. Only one, a hotel supplier, is seeking full-time, non-college-bound workers. She said teachers in vocational areas such as industrial trades, home economics and business usually handle their own placements, but that overall the prospect for jobs this year "doesn't seem much different from last year."

For the past three years, Adkerson said, "What has been surprising is that most of the students have really specific plans. They either have jobs lined up, are going in the military or are going to school." She said many students said they already have jobs and will continue working with that employer in either a full-time position or as part-time help while going on to school. "We just don't find very many kids who really don't know what they're going to do," Adkerson said.

"There are no jobs for non-skilled people," said Carolyn King, counseling coordinator at East Alton-Wood River High School. "We encourage them to head in the direction of junior college or technical school if they are not planning four-year degrees."

Employers increasingly demand workers with skills and many also look for some experience, King said.

"They want people who are skilled, have some computer knowledge and can communicate well," she said. King said 35 percent to 40 percent of East Alton-Wood River graduates go to four-year colleges, while another 35 percent to 40 percent seek some

Pit bull to remain in custody, judge rules

By Shay Wessol
Staff writer

A Madison County judge ruled Monday that a Granite City pit bull should remain in the custody of the county's Animal Control officers pending another hearing.

The injunction request was filed last week by Kenneth and Carol Pratt of Alton. The dog had attacked and bit their three-year-old son, Brandon, in Granite City.

The attack occurred May 13 in the 2600 block alley between Madison Avenue and Iowa Street, Granite City.

Without an order from the court, the dog would have been released back to the owner, said Terry Brookman, an animal control supervisor.

Chief Circuit Judge Paul Riley of the Madison County Circuit Court ordered the dog to remain penned at the animal shelter. The dog will continue in custody "until the court can determine if further action is necessary," according to court records.

That hearing is set for the afternoon of June 7.

The dog's owner, James Poudras of Granite City, did not appear at Monday's hearing.

The injured boy's parents asked in their suit that the dog be declared "a vicious animal" and that it be put to death.

The arbitrator approved the union's proposal for an additional 2 percent increase (or 10 percent of the base salary) after 20 years of service.

The union also sought to change the manner in which sick leave is accumulated and paid out. But the sick-leave policy for police officers will not change from previous agreements, according to the award.

Police Department employees are currently entitled to 18 days of sick leave per year. Any unused sick days can be accumulated, up to a maximum of 90, and an officer can be compensated for half of those accumulated upon retirement.

While the city successfully sought to keep the program intact, the police officers wanted the ability to accumulate up to 135 days over the course of a career, with a maximum of 45 days compensable.

The police union based its request on firefighters' compensable sick days. Because a firefighter works a 24-hour day as opposed to an eight-hour day, firefighters can collect payout for the equivalent of up to 720 hours upon retirement, while police officers can collect a maximum of 360 hours of pay.

He also ruled that police officers will receive an additional "longevity pay" increase after 20 years of service.

Under the current plan, officers receive longevity increases of 4, 5, 7 and 8 percent of their base salary after one, five, 10 and 15 years of service, respectively.

Vote fraud alleged in Brooklyn election

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

Losers in Brooklyn's April 20 village election have alleged that voter fraud took place. They challenged the winners in a complaint filed in St. Clair County on May 18.

Ruby Cook, Nathaniel Webster, Louise Smith, Juanita Clemons and Florence Campbell asked a judge to set aside the election results and call for a new election.

In the lawsuit, the candidates alleged that:

- Ballot envelopes had more than one ballot.
- Voters were given assistance in the voting booth but proper affidavits were not completed.
- Opposing candidates paid for votes.
- Campaigning occurred in the polling place and by election judges.

Poll watchers were not properly qualified or trained for the election.

In the April 20 general election, Raymond Douglas was elected as mayor; Ruth Ann Winston was named village clerk; and Carl Patton, Leland Warren and Darryl Calhoun were named trustees. All were named in the suit, as was the village of Brooklyn.

Man charged in woman's shooting

A 27-year-old St. Louis man has been charged with attempted murder in connection with the shooting of a pregnant St. Louis woman near Eagle Park earlier this month.

The woman's unborn child did not survive the May 5 shooting. The mother survived.

Lelton Reese Bell-EI, of the 2000 block of E. Gano, was charged Friday with attempted first-degree murder.

Illinois State Police and the Division of Criminal Investigation allege that Bell-EI fired several shots at Sylvia M. Johnson, 29, on May 5.

Bell-EI is in custody. Capt. Wayne Watson of DCI said Tuesday morning.

The possibility that Bell-EI could also face a murder charge in connection with the death of the fetus is being reviewed, Watson said and Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine confirmed.

Watson said Johnson was shot seven times near Eagle Park Road, but is recovering and will apparently survive the incident.

Johnson was four months pregnant at the time of the shooting.

"Her recovery has been remarkable for someone shot that many times," Watson said.

A passing motorist stopped to assist Johnson, who was walking near Bend Road/Eagle Park Road the morning of May 5, Watson said.

Johnson was transported by ambulance to St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, where she responded well to treatment, Watson said.

He said the Madison County Sheriff's Department was contacted at about 6:30 a.m. May 5 in regard to a shooting incident on Bend Road/Eagle Park Road, about a mile west of Highway 303, Madison County deputies responded to investigate.

city's health plan "more similar than different."

While the city asked for an increased deductible of $150 per participating member per year, up to a maximum of $450 per family, the union asked for a maximum of $300 per family.

Under the existing police contract, and contracts with all other unions representing city employees, the annual deductible — paid by every participating family member — is $50, with no maximum limit per family.

Because the health plan covers all city employees, all other unions must ratify the agreement before they can be implemented, said City Comptroller K.P. MacTaggart. While the firefighters union contract expired on April 30 of this year, contracts with all other city unions expired April 30, 1992.

According to figures provided to the arbitrator by the city, the city's self-funded insurance fund has diminished to nearly zero from a surplus of $600,000 to $800,000 several years ago.

The arbitrator ruled in favor of the union on the issue of wage-es because of the anticipated additional expense employees will incur under the proposed new health plan, according to the award.

The union asked for and received annual salary increases of 4 percent in the first year of the pact and 3.5 percent in the second year. The city had offered increases of 2 percent from May 1, 1992, to Oct. 31 of that year, an additional 2 percent increase from Nov. 1, 1992, to April 30, 1993, a 1.75 percent increase from May 1, 1993, to Nov. 1, 1993, and another 1.75 percent increase at that time.

While the long-term effect of the proposals is "essentially identical," the city would have saved money over the term of the contract under its proposal, as a result of the four-step plan rather than two-step implementation, the arbitrator said.

He also ruled that police officers will receive an additional "longevity pay" increase after 20 years of service.

Under the current plan, officers receive longevity increases of 4, 5, 7 and 8 percent of their base salary after one, five, 10 and 15 years of service, respectively.

The arbitrator approved the union's proposal for an additional 2 percent increase (or 10 percent of the base salary) after 20 years of service.

County Board member seeks committee input on raises

A Madison County Board member is calling for more committee oversight of raises awarded to appointed officials. Mike Fruth of Edwardsville blasted the county board's Finance and Personnel committees for recommending raises last week ranging from 1 percent to 11 percent for 19 department heads without consulting the committees that oversee those departments.

"Nobody asked the other committees for their input on these raises. How do they know if the department heads are doing a good job without going to the committees?" said Fruth, one of two board members to vote against the department head raises at Wednesday's meeting.

The raises were hammered out by the Finance and Personnel committees in a closed session shortly before the full county board voted on them. As a result, most board members did not know about them until they came up for a vote.

Personnel Committee Chairman Michael Semanisin later conceded the raises were kept secret to prevent a public outcry like last year when the board considered raises for some county officials.

Fruth, however, questioned whether the 10 members of the Finance and Personnel committees know enough about the performance of each of the department heads to determine whether raises are deserved.

"I think the committees should have three weeks' notification so there is time to evaluate the performance of the department heads and forward a recommendation to the Finance and Personnel committees," said Fruth.

Fruth is not a member of either the Finance or Personnel committees, but he sat in on the closed-door meetings where the raises were discussed.

His call for evaluations of appointees before raises are awarded echoes demands made by board member Harold Byers of Highland last fall when department heads got 1-percent to 12-percent raises. Byers then said department heads should go through a formal evaluation first.

Byers was the only other board member to oppose the raises for department heads Wednesday.

Under the current system, Fruth said, department heads without a friend or supporter on either the Finance or Personnel committees could be left high and dry when it comes to raises because there would be no one to argue on their behalf.

"That's what worries me. I mean, how do these guys know how well each of the (appointees) has or has not done his job if they are not looking for input from the other committees?"

The county board has 22 committees whose members are appointed by Chairman Nelson Hagnauer and approved by the full board. The county board also approved raises last week for 160 non-union employees, with Byers as the lone dissenter. Raises for Board of Review members were unopposed.

Program of the National Endowment for the Arts, the Getty Center for Education in the Arts and the Council for Basic Education to address the lack of study opportunity and the need for hands-on study of Mississippian effigy art.

First, Betancourt will study collections of Mississippian effigy art at the Field Museum in Chicago, the Missouri Historical Society in St. Louis and the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville.

There he will measure and study the sculptures and work with archeologists to learn as much as he can about the Mississippians' methods, materials, uses and other background information.

Then, selected sculptures will be photographed from all angles. "The Missouri Historical Society has a collection of more than 400 objects and not one of them is on display," he said. "That's hard to believe, but it's true." Betancourt, who has been teaching art for 24 years, will put together a collection of permanently mounted photographs of about two dozen sculptures to be used in the classroom.

He will write and record an audio presentation. A grant with the fellowship will be used to purchase a number of books dealing with Mississippian Indians and effigy sculpture.

"I went to the library and, right now, there are only one or two books," he said.

But for the heart of the project, Betancourt, whose sculpture is on display at the Gomes Gallery in Clayton, Mo., and the state capital in Columbia, Mo., will take the photographs, measurements and other information into his studio.

"Taking all that I've learned and carefully following the dime I have measured, I will work with clay to produce exact replicas of about 15 of the effigy sculptures," he said.

"Those will then be kiln-fired, so they are permanent and durable enough to be used in the classroom."

In the classroom, the models will be used to encourage students to create works of their own, Betancourt said, not by imitating or copying them. He hopes the students will be inspired to give the ancient art form modern relevancy.

"You usually think of art as something locked up in a glass case or behind a rope at a museum or gallery," Betancourt said. "But, this way, the students will make their own sculptures, while they still have clay on their hands, can pick up the replica, look it over, and use it as a reference to learn."

Betancourt said the Mississippian materials will not only be used in his high-school classes, but also in other classes in Granite City and perhaps throughout Madison County.

Betancourt's fellowship was one of 39 awarded this year from a field of nearly 650 applicants.

Racing bill meets opposition

Plan would force more racing at Fairmount

By Martin Richter
Staff writer

A bill that sponsors say will preserve jobs here by requiring more live racing at Fairmount Park passed the Illinois General Assembly on Thursday and awaits the signature of Gov. Jim Edgar.

Sen. Frank Watson, who sponsored the bill in the Senate, said in a press release that the bill is needed "because the track has been reducing race days and lowering purses for races, threatening jobs and the entire racing industry."

"About 800 people are employed by Fairmount, and there are 3,000 more jobs outside the track in jeopardy," Watson said. "Horse racing draws both local enthusiasts and tourists, and is a vital part of the economy in this area."

"If Fairmount continues to cut race days and rely primarily on the telecasts of races at other parks, it could lose its followers and this would be a real blow to our economy."

But Fairmount Racing Secretary Bobby Pace said he thinks the measure would be detrimental to racing here.

Rep. Jay Hoffman, who sponsored the bill in the House, agreed. He said the issue is jobs and economic viability of the track, which is Collinsville's second largest employer behind Unit 10 schools.

Hoffman said Fairmount will simulcast 600 Chicago races this year.

"To me, for the viability of the track, we have to ensure that there will be enough live racing," Hoffman said. "But also, if we're going to have a race track, the only one in Southern Illinois that is still viable, it should be running live, in my opinion."

The bill would require 125 days of live thoroughbred racing, and 105 days of standard breed harness racing.

Fairmount shortened its racing season this year, for the second year in a row, to maintain a more consistent purse structure, Pace said.

This season includes 117 days of thoroughbred racing and about 70 days of harness racing. The thoroughbred season ran 132 days in 1992, and 164 days in

"In order for me to attempt to improve the quality of racing here, money talks," Pace said. "I need a decent purse structure. If there is an increase in live racing, I think that will hurt my purses."

Pace added that the schedules now are timed so that, for example, Fairmount's thoroughbred season ends just before the season begins at Hawthorne, allowing owners to race at both places.

"I believe the schedule of our racing is good right now," he said. "If you have overlapping meets, then you wind up with a horse availability problem."

Hoffman said he also wants to look for a way to make Chicago tracks accept more simulcast races from Fairmount.

Pace was much more enthusiastic about that proposal. Currently, Fairmount Park simulcasts to Chicago-area tracks once a week, on Tuesday afternoon. Pace said the handle for last Tuesday alone was around $350,000.

Pace said increasing simulcasting from Fairmount would bring in more revenue, and is the kind of thing that could allow the track to offer more days of live racing without cutting into the size of the purses.

Help us honor your father

Fathers come in all shapes and sizes — tall and short, round and thin, husky and slight.

He's the guy who fixes broken skates, pitches baseball practice, beats you at checkers and makes a game out of learning your multiplication tables. He has a big lap — and a big heart — and both are always open to you.

He's tough but tender and strong yet sentimental. He loves to laugh and make you laugh, but he's always there for you when you cry. He's just Dad.

To honor Dad on Father's Day the Journals are offering a couple of opportunities that just might be fun.

The Journal is looking for a matched pair with a father and son look-alike contest. Grandsons and grandfathers are also welcome to submit pictures of the two together or separate — shots that show similarities. Pictures can be picked up at the Journal office after publication.

For the younger crowd — ages 12 and under — the Journal invites you to "Picture your Dad." Draw a picture of what you dad looks like to you and write a paragraph about him in 50 words or less.

Entries must be received by 5 p.m. on Thursday, June 10. The winning entries will be featured in the Father's Day edition of the Journal.

Corrections

Brandy Michelle Green is the daughter of Kenny and Sherry Green of South Roxana. Her mother's name was accidentally left out of a news item in the May 23 Granite City Press-Record/Journal.

Forrest Garrett and Fawn Garrett were listed on the incorrect honor roll for Blair Elementary School in Madison in the May 23 Granite City Press-Record/Journal. Both made the Straight A honor roll for the third quarter.

Healing testimony at Shrine June 5

Jeanne Fretel, one of the 65 authorized miracles attributed to Lourdes and one of the 10 persons still living, will visit the Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows.

Fretel will share a personal testimony of her healing experiences at Lourdes, France, Saturday, June 5, at 7:30 p.m. at the Outdoor Amphitheatre. (In the event of rain, the presentation will be held at the Church of Our Lady of the Snows.)

Fretel's miraculous healing of tuberculous peritonitis was recognized by Cardinal Rogues, Archbishop of Rennes, France on Nov. 20, 1950.

High-speed train on display here

A high-speed luxurious Swedish-built train now used on the East Coast will be on display next month in St. Louis and Springfield.

The X2000 is one of the types of trains being considered for service between Chicago and St. Louis through Alton, which has been designated a high-speed rail corridor by the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Because of limited availability for the train, which will also go on public display in other corridors around the nation this summer, and the time needed for setup, Alton was not chosen for the demonstration, said Martha Scheibel, a spokeswoman for the Illinois Department of Transportation.

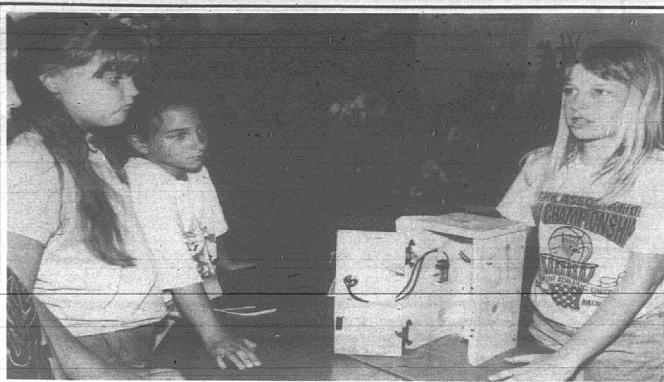

The train will be on display from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday, June 19, at St. Louis Union Station.

The train features three coaches, a bistro car and a cab car (combination coach and locomotive).

People will be able to walk through the passenger cars. The coaches can seat 51 people and feature stereo headphone outlets. The bistro car seats 21 and has a snack bar. The train includes telephone and fax service and personal computer outlets.

The train will also be on display from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday, June 20, at the Springfield Amtrak station.

Open house today at SIUE Fitness Center

As a class project, a group of speech communication students at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville is sponsoring an open house today at the newly constructed SIUE Student Fitness Center, which is adjacent to the Vadalabene Center.

From 3-4 p.m., the students will focus on demonstrating those facilities in the center that are available to people with disabilities. These facilities include a universal gym, track and wheelchair access for both indoor and outdoor swimming pools. Center staff members are also qualified to design exercise programs for those with disabilities.

Refreshments will be served in the center's lobby after the one-hour tour. Parking is available in the lot west of the center.

Jackpot

Washington Park woman wins $22 million in Lotto

SPRINGFIELD—Dreams do come true if you believe. Melvina Miller of Washington Park parlayed numbers that appeared on a football scorecard in a dream 10 years ago into a $22 million Lotto jackpot.

Nobody had to pinch her to see if she had been dreaming. "When I dreamed these six numbers in March 1983, I just knew that someday I was going to win," Miller said. "I told myself that I was going to play these same numbers the rest of my life."

The dream numbers appeared on a football game scorecard — 4, 19, 21, 27, 31, 37 — and someone in the dream told her to keep playing the lottery. Miller, 37, scored in Saturday's Lotto drawing on a ticket she bought at Super X Drugs in Alton and claimed her prize Tuesday.

Miller said she will use some of her new wealth to buy her dream home, a house she's wanted ever since she saw it under construction. "I visited the house every month, and I told the contractor that I would be staying there but they didn't believe me," she said, declining to give the location. She's also disconnected her telephone because of a sudden onslaught of "old friends."

Miller will have plenty of time to daydream in her dream house because she plans to continue working as a steel worker at Laclede Steel Co. in Alton only "for a few days."

Sharing in the prize will be her fiancé, Michael Pierson of Collinsville, her daughter, Tonisha, 16, and son, Clarence, 10. Tonisha will get a new car.

"Michael and I had already set a wedding date of June 16, and we plan to keep it," Miller said. "It's also the day we move into our new house."

Miller bought her Lotto ticket at the Super X store, 502 W. Delmar Ave., when she stopped to buy some lipstick. The store owner will receive $220,000 for selling the winning ticket.

Miller will receive $1.1 million a year for 20 years. After $341,000 in federal and state taxes are deducted from the check, she will be left with about $760,000 a year.

She will get her first check in about three weeks. "I'm rich, I'm rich, I have money now," Miller said. "I just started running through the house saying, 'I'm rich.'"

Small businesses called key to economy

Big corporations may get all the attention, but it's the small businesses that must prosper if the American economy is to be rejuvenated.

That message was given to about 25 civic and business leaders from Central and Southern Illinois at an Industry Network Luncheon held recently at the Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows. The seminar was sponsored by Belleville Area College's Business Assistance Center and State Community College.

"If we're going to revitalize our economy, it's going to have to be the small manufacturers coming through," said Dr. David Goetsch, provost of Dakota-Walton Community College in Fort Walton Beach, Fla., and the founder of the Technology Coast Manufacturing Network, a consortium of 30 Florida businesses that pool their resources and work together to pursue contracts that would be unattainable by individual companies.

"We wanted the world to think of us as more than sunny beaches," he said.

Goetsch started the network in 1990 when he was dean of technical educational and economic development at the Florida junior college. Over the past three years, Goetsch has been asked to speak across the country and around the world about his unique network, which refers to as TeCMEN.

At first, business executives in Fort Walton Beach area turned a cold shoulder to TeCMEN. But three months after their first meeting to discuss TeCMEN, the U.S. government announced major military cutbacks. Since several businesses in the region depended heavily on government work for income, Goetsch said executives suddenly became interested in his idea.

"If we hadn't done TeCMEN, 10 companies would be out of business. Six companies had never done anything besides government contracts," he said.

Though the 30 companies in TeCMEN work together in several areas, they still maintain their individuality, Goetsch said.

"CEOs not only see each other as competitors, but also as a source of work."

The first year of TeCMEN was devoted to Goetsch and his staff compiling a database containing a list of assets that each company in the consortium had, including personnel, supplies and equipment.

"Creating a database is the most powerful thing you can do," Goetsch said. "Every entity has a different set of resources and different supplies."

Goetsch told the group that the main requirement needed for starting a group similar to TeCMEN is a desire and willingness to work together.

"Any group of organizations with like services that can get together to develop joint solutions for common problems is a network," he said.

Dr. David Goetsch makes a point during his speech.

Hospital offers a look at emergency care procedures

You are in your home late at night watching television when your three-year-old becomes seriously ill. What do you do?

As part of Emergency Medical Services week, May 23-28, St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City would like you to know what to expect when you need emergency care at its facility.

"If you have an emergency in your home and need an ambulance, the first thing you should do is dial 9-1-1," said Jill Pendegrass, RN and EMS coordinator at SEMC. "The dispatcher will call an ambulance to your home."

EMT providers affiliated with SEMC include: Campbells, and Advanced Life Support (ALS) service; Granite City Fire Department; and ALS service; LifeForce Paramedics, and ALS service; and Long Lake Fire Department, an Intermediate Defibrillator Service.

"In order for EMS personnel to respond to a call properly, it is necessary for the dispatcher to ask the caller specific questions," Pendegrass said. "It is important for callers to be patient and provide emergency personnel with this vital information."

More than 32,000 people come to the SEMC Emergency Room each year, according to Terry Deloney, director of Emergency Services. But if you haven't used ER, what should you expect?

"When someone arrives at the ER, he or she must sign in at the reception desk," Deloney said. "Then a triage nurse will check vital signs and make a brief assessment of the person's need. Patients must remember they are not necessarily seen in the order they arrived, but by the order of the significance of their need. The most serious patients will be seen first."

After seeing the triage nurse, the patient meets with the registration clerk who takes his or her name, address, and insurance information as part of the billing process. Then the patient sees a nurse and physician.

"Depending on what is wrong with the patient, he or she may need to have X-Rays or Lab work done which will add to the amount of time in the ER," Deloney said.

Emergency care is available at SEMC 24 hours a day with 11 nurses, two ER Technicians, two clerks, and two physicians present from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., and one physician overnight.

"If the physician determines the patient may return home, the patient is released and the nurse gives him or her discharge instructions to follow at home. They may make physician referrals for follow-up examinations if needed," Deloney said. Who should come to the Emergency Room?

"If you have a problem which needs to be handled immediately and are unable to reach your physician, come to the ER," Deloney said.

Consumers like private-label savings

By Roger McGrath
Correspondent

Millions of consumers, having made the switch to private-label grocery and health-and-beauty aids, won't be returning to the national brands.

Why? Private-label products offer the same quality, but at savings of 15 to 50 percent, say proponents of private labels.

That is why private labels' share of the health-and-beauty aids market has climbed from 5 percent in 1985 to nearly 20 percent now, says David Biernbaum, vice president of marketing at Vi-Jon Laboratories Inc., a major supplier of private-label health and beauty aids made at plants in Wellston, Vinita Park and San Leandro, Calif.

He predicts private labels (sometimes referred to as "store brands") will claim an even bigger share in the near future.

LCCC classes to be available to Shell Oil, Olin workers

Employees of Shell Oil Co. and Olin Corp. will link up with instructors at Lewis and Clark Community College in a $300,000 two-way electronic learning network.

Illinois Bell/Ameritech will provide the high-speed digital data circuits and equipment that will let employees interact with LCCC instructors without leaving their workplaces.

The classes start in August. The equipment and cables are worth about $300,000, officials said.

His evidence comes from Europe, where consumer trends are typically a decade or so ahead of the U.S. and where private labels now account for half of all retail purchases.

"There's really reason to believe that by the year 2000 we could be looking at a 30-percent market share," Biernbaum says.

Private labels aren't new, nor the price savings. Grocers and drug-store chains have long stocked private labels.

In recessions past, penny-pinching consumers turned to store brands for lower prices.

That cycle's been broken in the current economy. Today's consumers are buying private-label salsa and chocolate chip cookies with 29 percent more chips, not typical recession-beating products, says Brian Sharoff, president of the Private Label Manufacturers Association, New York.

Price and quality account for this turn of events.

In market-basked surveys, the manufacturers association has found typical savings of 33 percent. Here are some savings:

- 38 cents on a 12-ounce can of frozen orange juice.

- 44 cents on an 18-ounce box of corn flakes.

- 52 cents on an 18-ounce jar of peanut butter.

- $2.81 on a 100-tablet bottle of aspirin.

- $1.49 on a 20-count box of trash bags.

"Private-label quality has improved considerably in recent years," says Joe Kickham, category manager at Schnuck Markets.

Biernbaum says Vi-Jon has the ability to make items that exceed national-brand quality.

"We have to restrain ourselves" because retailers worry that items that aren't exactly equivalent to the national brands will be perceived as lower in quality, he says.

Retailers have noticed that improved quality, coupled with price savings, has won loyal customers to private-label products. That has given retailers confidence to actively, aggressively market their own labels. "Retailers are acting out a new role, they are no longer just owners of stores delighted to carry national brands," Sharoff says.

Case in point: Last year's introduction of Schnuck's Super Soda. Backed by an aggressive advertising campaign, the soda sold 1 million cases, or 24 million cans, in 12 months.

"Its quality is comparable to Coke and Pepsi. Some of our customers have told us they like it better," Kickham says.

Given that success, Sharoff predicts continued growth in private-label volume.

of higher education," Chapman said.

"Hopefully the lessons we learn here will be a model for distance learning," Illinois Bell spokeswoman Mary McCormick said.

Spokesmen for Shell and Olin said their companies are excited about their involvement in the project.

"It's very exciting, but not surprising," said Gary Davis, executive director of the Illinois Community College Trustees Association.

Journals, Tenholder mark 28 years of travel

Tenholder Travel began its association with the Journals in 1965, when the two firms organized the first Europe Tour, which departed the following summer.

The tour was so successful that the program was extended and the Europe Tour became an annual event. In an overwhelming response from readers, a Hawaiian Tour was organized and departed in the fall of 1966, and also became an annual tour.

In the 1970s, more than 20,000 readers traveled with Tenholder on Journal-sponsored tour programs.

In the early 1980s, the Grand tour concept was developed, and the name "Grand Tour" was added to those tours which included only the very best available accommodations and services on an all-inclusive basis.

"Grand Tour" guests stay in some of the world's grandest hotels, dine in fine restaurants and enjoy delightful evening entertainment, which if purchased on an individual basis, would be affordable only to the very rich.

Since their humble beginning in 1965, the Journal-sponsored tours have visited Alaska, Africa, Canada, China, the British Isles, Europe, Hawaii, Ireland, Japan and the Orient, New England's fall foliage, Rio de Janeiro, Scandinavia, the South Pacific and many other destinations across the globe. This year, Journal tourists traveled to Hawaii in January. Another group is preparing to depart on the Grand Alaska tour and cruise in July. And the Fall Tour to Germany's Oktoberfest and the Alps is filling fast. A special "Christmas in Hawaii" tour also is planned for this year. Departing Christmas Day, the tour visits Oahu and Maui and returns to St. Louis on Jan. 1, 1994, giving readers an opportunity to celebrate New Year's aloft. Because of the popularity of holiday season travel, early reservations are necessary.

Journal Tours for 1994 include the Grand Hawaii Tour, departing in February, the Grand Alaska Tour, the Grand Cruise to Scandinavia and the British Isles in the summer, and the Grand Tour to Australia and New Zealand in the fall. This year Journal readers were offered the opportunity to obtain information and reservations direct from the tour coordinator at Tenholder Travel, or from one of the Vista Independent Agents.

Readers are invited to call 884-555 in St. Louis, or toll free 800-339-5910 for information and reservations on the Journal Tour or the name of the Vista Independent Agent nearest them.

Memorial Day celebration begins

Monday, May 24, marked the beginning of a week-long Memorial Day Celebration at Lake View Memorial Gardens in Belleville. The beautiful black granite Prisoners of War/Missing In Action Memorial will be the first to be highlighted. It enshrines, in bronze, the names of 111 Winco POW/MIA's from the Vietnam war. This memorial is dedicated to all of the POW/MIA's from WW I ($350), WW II (78,751), Korea (8,177), and Vietnam (2,434). This memorial proudly displays the American flag, Illinois state flag, the POW/MIA flag and all 5 service flags.

On Friday evening, May 28, 105 American flags will be flown around the lake (lighted nightly) to memorialize those veterans who died in 1992 and were interred at Lake View. These flags will fly through Memorial Day.

On Saturday morning, May 29, VFW Post No. 8677 will place over 2,500 small American flags in the gardens to honor all of the veterans who are at rest at Lake View.

On Sunday evening, May 30, those families who lost veterans in 1992 will honor their loved ones at a Service of Tribute in the Reiss Memorial Chapel.

On Monday, May 31, Memorial Day, the flag that flew over our nation's capital in 1963 when President Kennedy was assassinated, will be raised from half staff to full staff in memory of all veterans who died since the American Revolution.

Also 12 historic flags of early America, which mark great turning points in our nation's history, will be flying near the Veteran's Memorial to reflect the sacrifices made by so many over the years.

This Memorial Day week at Lake View is a culmination of tributes paid each year every day of the year. An American flag which is draped the casket of one of our veteran's is flown over the Veteran's Memorial which now enshrines 2,533 names cast in bronze. These tributes, with the Statue of Liberty Replica, and the POW/MIA Memorial are constant reminders of the great sacrifices made by those who consider no price too high for the cause of freedom.

The appropriate service flags of the United States Army, Marines, Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard will also fly over the Veteran's Memorial during this Memorial Day observance.

The experts at Frank's explain Gardening Terms

Understanding the words and phrases

FRANK'S NURSERY & CRAFTS

Where Beautiful Things Begin

Every profession and activity has its own language. There are words, phrases and terms that make sense only to those involved. To check your etymology, turn to a dictionary in your eyes, not at your funny bone. The term niner left may not mean much to a lot of us, but it's clearly understood by a pilot about to land or take off.

Gardening is no different. It has its own unique vocabulary, and if you're not familiar with it, you may seem lost. To help you feel more at home, here are some commonly used words and phrases.

Edgar gets tough bill on carjacking

Carjackers would face stiffer penalties under a bill headed for the governor's desk.

The bill would ban probation for carjackers and carry a punishment of four to 15 years in prison. Under current law, carjackers are punished for robbery and are eligible for probation. Carjackers accusing the disabled or people older than 60 or younger than 16 would face seven to 30 years in jail. Use of a weapon would also draw seven to 30 years.

Also Wednesday, the House sent a bill to the governor that would prohibit spanking in all Illinois schools. The bill states that school discipline policies shall not allow slapping, paddling, intentional infliction of harm or forcing pupils to remain in painful positions.

It would allow teachers to use reasonable force to defend themselves or others.

Job outlook still not bright

The job outlook for spring graduates is about the same as in the last few years — and that's not good.

"It's still pretty tight," said Sheryl Devine, director of career services and job placement at Lewis and Clark Community College in Godfrey. "It's just as tight for community college graduates as for people with four-year degrees, maybe more so."

"Job prospects are about like they were the last few years," said Charles Western, director of the career planning and placement office at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. "Only slightly more employers say they will be hiring."

For high school graduates not seeking additional education, the job outlook is especially bleak, limited mostly to fast-food and janitorial work, high school counselors said.

Both Devine and Western said demand is strong for nurses and other health-care professionals.

Graduates with degrees in accounting, information systems and computer science have good prospects, too, Western said.

Community college graduates with degrees in drafting, electronics or computer specialties may start at a relatively high salary, depending on the company, Devine said.

Western said teachers are in demand in the South and Southwest, but demand is weak in Illinois and the rest of the Midwest. "There are jobs, but not as many as in previous years," he said.

After more than three years of recession, students are beginning to adapt, Western said.

"We're finding more students willing to relocate now," he said.

Many engineering graduates who once would have found work at McDonnell Douglas Corp. are leaving the area now that defense budget cuts have forced a downsizing of the aerospace giant, according to Western.

And, he said, many graduates are willing to take lower starting pay if a job offers good benefits and working conditions.

Western said many people out of work because of the poor economy are making the most of the situation by going back to school.

Some want to improve their prospects in their own fields, while others are looking to change careers, he said.

other post-secondary training.

Marie Schickedanz, coordinator of counseling at Alton High School, said about 50 percent of Alton's grads move on to four-year colleges and universities, while about 15 percent seek some other type of post-secondary education.

A smaller percentage actually earn four-year degrees and a larger percentage get two-year degrees, she said.

"Our push is that they need to go on to some kind of post-secondary training," she said. Without education beyond high school, job prospects are "very slim," Schickedanz said.

She said the job outlook for high school graduates this spring is poor.

"I've only had one call from an employer who wants to hire someone for a permanent position," she said. "Most employers want experience. It's very hard for kids who are coming out of school right now."

Some careers that require only two-year degrees offer excellent job prospects, Schickedanz said.

A bachelor's degree remains essential in many career fields, but it does not ensure success, she said.

"Once it's guaranteed a job," Schickedanz said. "Nowadays, it means you will have more opportunities to find work."

About 55 percent of Edwardsville High School graduates head for four-year colleges and universities, and about 5 percent seek other post-secondary education, counselor Richard Pilney said.

Job prospects for high school graduates are "maybe better than five years ago, but not as good as 10 or 15 years ago" when there were more factory jobs, he said.

Some graduates are quite a few jobs for graduating seniors in construction around Edwardsville because of a strong demand for new housing.

But most graduates seek a valuable additional education, he added.

"Most of them have worked in fast-food restaurants and most were in high school and most understand they can't go any farther without a skill."

Mace

"We have yet to entertain a complaint from a suspect who has been maced," Ruebhausen said.

Ruebhausen said the mace works on intoxicated individuals and animals as well. The only time it is ineffective is during windy conditions, when the two, one-second blasts may not reach the face of the intended target.

He said the product is relatively inexpensive. A $12 canister is good for about 30 applications, he said.

The police need as many options as they can find," Griffin said. "There's so many situations they run up against, and the more less-than-lethal options they have, rather than the baton or firearm, the better."

Diocese may revise some policies on abuse

By Laura Talarner
Staff writer

Possible changes in the Belleville Catholic Diocesan policy and in state regulations may modify the way the diocese deals with allegations of sexual misconduct.

More than 100 priests met last week to discuss the diocesan policy that addresses the issue of clerical sexual abuse of minors. The policy was adopted April 15.

"We had a very honest exchange of ideas and feelings on the matter," said Bishop James Keleher, after completing a Mass Wednesday for the residents at Four Fountains Convalescent Center in Belleville.

"I think the meeting was very good." Six priests from the diocese have been removed from their parishes within the past three months amid allegations of sexual misconduct. The priests are being investigated by a Review Board which will follow the diocese's current policy. Keleher hopes to have the cases resolved by July 1.

"I invited the priests to make any comments they wanted," Keleher said.

"I will take the suggestions and process them through the Review Board and the Priest Council and if the recommended changes receive approval, then I would modify the policy."

Keleher said the priests wanted some clarifications in the plan.

"They think the policy tends to be overly legalistic," he said. "And they want more compassion to be expressed in it. Some (priests) suggested adding a couple of pages to the front of the policy expressing compassion for the victims."

"But they also want the rights of the priests observed," said Bishop James Keleher, after completing a Mass Wednesday for the residents at Four Fountains Convalescent Center in Belleville.

The House passed the bill earlier this week that would require members of the clergy to report allegations of physical and sexual abuse of minors to the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services.

The Senate passed the bill in late April with an amendment that exempts priests from reporting cases disclosed to them during confession or while acting as a spiritual advisor. The law currently exempts clergymen, ministers, priests, rabbis and religious leaders from reporting such cases.

Keleher said the diocesan policy will not be modified before July 1 and will include any changes the state law mandates.

Gardening seminar for retirees

Jeffrey M. Prosser, the Granite City representative for the financial-services firm Edward D. Jones & Co., will host a free seminar for area retirees Wednesday, May 26, featuring Jerry Baker, America's master gardener.

The program will be broadcast live via satellite from Jones' St. Louis headquarters. It will feature an in-house demonstration of techniques to improve your gardening results. "Whether you have a green thumb or you've always wished you did, you'll enjoy this informative hour of gardening tips and give demonstrations with America's best-known gardener," Prosser said.

Jerry Baker hosts the weekly "On Garden Line" radio program.

East Side teams continue annual march to state

By Steve Porter
Staff writer

The high school state track meet is 99 years young, or old enough to have undergone plenty of changes since Peoria High School won the first Illinois title in 1893.

There weren't any state finals in 1917-18. Illinois had Class A and Class B competition through 1925 before settling upon a single class-system. The Illinois High School Association went back to a two-division format in 1975.

Track events once figured in yards are now computed in meters. Cinder tracks have given way to all-weather surfaces. The face of track looks much different in the 1990s.

Yet certain things haven't budded, at least in the past 20 years or so. East St. Louis continues to churn out track champions.

First of all, you're aware of Lincoln's prowess at the state girls' meet. The Tigerettes have won 14 Class AA state crowns the past 16 seasons.

The boys' success is just as amazing, though East St. Louis Senior and Lincoln have shared in the glory. The two city rivals have demonstrated a knack for battling one another, and the best of Chicago, for state championships.

Get this: East St. Louis Senior and Lincoln have combined for 10 large-school state titles in the past 18 years. More impressive is the way both schools have constantly been in the hunt for Illinois championships.

In 16 of the those 18 seasons, either the Flyers or the Tigers have finished as one of the best two teams at state. The only two times it didn't happen were in 1986, when the Flyers finished fourth, and in 1980 when — incredibly — neither school broke into the top ten. Proviso East and Waukegan East shared the championship that year.

Other than that, it has been a Flyers and Tigers party at the state finals. East Side has won six state titles in the past 18 years, while Lincoln has captured four Illinois titles. The Flyers have been on a run of sorts the last six seasons. They were state runners-up from 1987-90, won the 1991 crown and came in third behind champion Decatur MacArthur and runner-up Lincoln last spring.

"They have a great program and great tradition," Lincoln coach Leonard Manley said of the Flyers, "but we don't fear them. We'll continue to plug away."

East St. Louis, which beat Lincoln head-to-head four times and outscored Alton in five major meetings with the Redbirds, should be in the middle of things in this weekend's state finals at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston. The Flyers haven't been beaten this season, but East Side coach John Davis is reluctant to tab his team as the state favorite.

"With what we're taking up there, I think we have a good shot at it," Davis said.

hard, I'm glad I'm back as the winner."

Gardner qualified for the finals by winning her preliminary heat Friday in 12.54. It was a long road back for the senior, who suffered a back injury last year in a bus accident. She said it was simply hard work that allowed her to regain her title.

"All the running I did, the summer workouts, it was all worth it," said Gardner, who raised her arms and turned to the crowd after her final high school race. "Last year, I was taped up all over, but I would have had the record this year without the wind."

Madison coach Gene Briggs was as excited as Gardner after the race.

"It was her race and she finished first," Briggs said. "When she decides to do something, it usually gets done. That's the very strong will that she's had since she was a freshman. She has to rank with the best group ever, if not, she's at the top."

The "Trojanettes" 400-meter relay team also qualified for Saturday's finals, but a ninth-place finish was all it could muster.

The team of Tiffany Taylor, Cheryl Gardner, Latisha Swift and Yukeitha Gardner finished in 51.91. The winning time of 50.17 was posted by Rochester.

"We just didn't run the first three legs like we should," Briggs said. "Today we just weren't hitting."

representing Granite City in Arlington Heights at state Thursday. Senior singles player Jack Carmody and doubles players Joe Markel and Sun Kumar made it through sectional competition.

"My other singles player (Joel Belmer) played the No. 4 seed (Alton's Chris Thornton) real tough and let him off the hook," Lobdell said.

Although Belmer didn't make it, Carmody claimed third place in singles and the doubles team of Markel and Kumar dropped their match to Alton's Shane Dean and Morgan McAfoos for a fourth place showing.

"Carmody did exactly what I expected him to do," Lobdell said.

The other Granite City doubles team of Chris Mitchell and Jason Smith made it to the quarterfinals before being ousted.

The Warriors placed third overall in the sectional with 21 points behind Belleville West, which scored 36 points. Alton posted 23 points. Altogether finished in fourth place with 14 points.

Three teams, East St. Louis, Lincoln and Wood River, tied for fifth with six points, while Marquette and Cahokia did not score.

Markel

Kumar

"I think the tournament was weak on the first day, but the semifinals had some good competition," Kaiser said.

"My kids didn't have a chance (at beating Belleville West)," Lobdell said. "In singles, their two players were much more experienced and had much more power."

The Warriors' doubles team of Markel and Kumar took the team of T.J. Schaefer and McMillin to three sets before falling.

Markel, Kumar and Carmody will finish off the season at the state tournament, which will be held Thursday through Saturday.

SPORTS

•Warriors

After the Warriors scored a run in the second inning, errors plagued the Flyers again in the third inning. The Warriors had Wilson on third base and Marc Patton on second base when Hawkins' pickoff attempt to second base sailed into center field, allowing Wilson to score. Patton later scored on a hit by Rob Odum.

The Flyers answered in the third with their first run. After Warren May walked and Donald Dace singled, Anthony Brooks drove in the first run with a double to make the score 6-1.

The Warriors also scored in the fourth when Wilson doubled home Maxfield.

Granite City kept the pressure on East St. Louis the entire game. In the seventh inning, with Jeff Ridenour on first base, Patton laced a line drive to center field that got by Richard Jenkins. Ridenour scored on the play, and Patton advanced to third. He later scored on Odum's second RBI of the game.

East St. Louis tried to get back into the game in the final inning, but the Flyers only managed to score one run. With the bases loaded and one out, Ken Reeves ripped the ball to Winfield at first base. The ball bounced off his shoulder to the second baseman, who then threw it to the shortstop for the fielder's choice.

The Granite City defense stood its ground, for the most part, on the infield and outfield. In the fifth inning, Jenkins roped a ball that would have excited most area ball parks. But left fielder Ridenour tracked the ball down with an over-the-shoulder catch.

The Warriors' next game is Saturday against Civic Memorial or Jerseyville in the Edwardsville Class AA Regional. The Warriors will also play Sunday against Mount Vernon at Buch Stadium.

Mature Americans find travel & social opportunities with RVs

The RV lifestyle fosters a sense of community among owners of the recreational vehicles, offering a wide variety of activities shared by family and new friends met along the way.

Home is where the recreation vehicle (RV) goes, say millions of mature Americans who take frequent and extended trips across the country, meeting new people in motorhomes, travel trailers, truck campers, folding campers and van conversions.

"Mature travelers are good candidates for RV travel because many have the time, discretionary funds and desire to see and experience the small towns, big cities, popular attractions and natural beauty of the United States," said Ron Noe, member services specialist for the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP).

A survey conducted during the 1992 AARP Biennial Convention in San Antonio, Texas, found nearly 40 percent of respondents owned an RV. Freedom and flexibility were cited as the main reasons for choosing this way of travel.

The RV lifestyle also fosters a sense of community, offering mature travelers a valuable network of friends who share a common interest. Camping clubs, which hold annual conventions, regional rallies, camp-outs and other events to bring RVers together, provide an active social network on the road. The Good Sam Club, National Campers and Hikers Association, Family Motor Coach Association, Loners on Wheels and Loners of America are among the national camping clubs that are popular with midlife and older Americans.

The flexibility and economics associated with RV travel encourage greater RV use by seniors. A vacation cost comparison study conducted by the international accounting firm Pannell Kerr Forster found RV vacations are overwhelmingly more economical than traditional trips by car, bus, train or airplane, regardless of trip destination or duration. RV vacations cost anywhere from half to three-quarters less than comparable vacations.

For a complimentary packet of general information about RVing, write to RVIA, Dept. SR, P.O. Box 2999, Reston, VA, 22090.

Camping with all the extras at today's commercial campgrounds

Remember the old days when the word "camping" conjured pictures of people huddled in sleeping bags out in the open wilderness? That will always be an option, but what about those who would like to spend some time with nature without leaving civilization completely behind?

An entire industry has grown up to offer modern conveniences and many surprising extras to today's camper and RV traveler. Catering to a widening range of interests and ages, these privately owned and operated campgrounds and RV parks are becoming destinations in and of themselves for travelers on the go.

There are approximately 12,000 privately-owned campgrounds in the U.S. that can easily accommodate all RV types and tenters. Swimming pools, game rooms, playgrounds, snack bars, laundry facilities, grocery and supply stores, stocked fishing ponds, horseback riding, nature trails and recreation programs make these properties a popular vacation and lodging choice.

Children experience hours of enjoyment from the facilities and activities offered. The abundance of families who enjoy camping excursions enables them to meet new friends and share experiences.

A recent camping vacation trend is the RV resort. Offering health clubs, indoor swimming pools, whirlpools, golf courses, tennis courts and telephone and cable television hookups, these properties rival luxury hotels at a fraction of the cost.

For complimentary "Go Camping America" vacation planning information call 1-800-67-SUNNY, toll-free, or write to Go Camping America, P.O. Box 2669, Dept. P, Reston, VA 22090.

Family camping vacations prove to be most affordable

Rising costs don't necessarily mean an end to the traditional summer vacation. A vacation cost comparison study shows that a family can get 50 percent to 75 percent more vacation for its money when traveling and camping in a recreation vehicle (RV) since it provides transportation, lodging and meals in one convenient package.

Conducted by Pannell Kerr Forster, the study demonstrated that traveling by RV and staying in a campground cost a family of four 52 percent less than a comparable car/hotel vacation, 68 percent less than a bus or train/hotel trip, and 78 percent less than an hotel excursion.

Campground fees, found to average $13.66 per night in 58 cities, provided especially substantial savings. Hotel/motel room rates averaged $33.74 per night in the same location.

Cost savings were equally significant for weekend, extended weekend and two and three-week RV vacations.

"The vacation comparison study shows that RV vacations are so economical that it doesn't take many trips to justify an RV purchase," said Gary LaBella, of the Go Camping America Committee, which sponsored the study.

"Unlike expenditures for these more expensive vacation options," said LaBella, "an RV purchase is a lasting investment with continuing returns: unlimited use, savings on future vacations and the resale value of the unit itself."

Gardening information available

In an effort to better serve the thousands of people who call the Missouri Botanical Garden, a 24-hour pre-recorded hot line known as "Hortline" has been created. This service supplements the existing live answer service. Using a touch-tone phone, callers can discover answers to hundreds of gardening questions. The service provides timely gardening tips, describes the plants in bloom at the Missouri Botanical Garden, offers information on how to reach a master gardener directly and much more.

Here's how it works: Dial 776-5522. Listen to the introductory Press "2" for timely gardening tips; press "3" for plants in bloom in the Botanical Garden; press "4" for information on getting in contact with a master gardener. Once you have the "Hortline" directory — a flyer containing hundreds of topics on gardening — you can enter one of the 4-digit topic numbers to get specific information.

For example, call HORTLINE, listen to the introduction then press "1." When asked, enter 296 for lawn mowing tips or enter 3460 for rose care or try 702 for watering indoor plants. You may repeat any recorded message by pressing the star key (*) on your phone. To exit in the middle of a message press "0" and enter a new four-digit topic number. To return to the menu, press "2" at any time. Simply hang up when you are finished listening.

For a free informative HORTLINE directory, send a self-addressed business-size envelope stamped with 29 cents postage to: Missouri Botanical Garden, HORTLINE Directory, MGB PR Office, P.O. Box 299, St. Louis, Mo. 63166-0299. Or visit the Missouri Botanical Garden to receive a copy.

Small amount of beef makes good eating...2C

Eating from sea to sea

By Janice Denham
Staff writer

Memorial Day is the starting point of the summer vacation season. Eating is alive and good food is cookin' from sea to sea.

Some people have discarded the big cooler in the back of the station wagon for a minivan and fast food, but don't throw away the old travel ideas, because planning and organization make a trip more enjoyable.

Use plenty of plastic storage bags. Individual packaging of everything from underwear to snacks means less daily hassles.

Create privacy zones within a car, even a tiny nest, so each person has an area for stowing a few personal items. Clip clothespins keep maps and other items handy or away from doors and dampness. Keep a backpack for quick jaunts with a snack, sweater and camera.

Single-serving foods are a boon to the traveler, whether the trip is by plane, train or automobile. Fruit, juice, cheese sticks, crackers and cracker combinations, pudding, even tuna salad come in small servings. Some are available in low-fat or fat-free varieties. Check the package for specific information, but many unopened packs do not require refrigeration, although their enjoyment may be enhanced if they are cool. Be sure items that require chilling are kept on ice.

Keep a separate package with plastic forks and spoons, napkins, small and stable paper plates and packets of sandwich or coffee seasonings. Straws help a person of any age avoid beverage spills.

If fast food still answers the itinerary best, a new alternative to the traveler is the supermarket deli and bakery, which offer hot and chilled foods.

More information on travel organizing is available in a free booklet, "Traveling with Ease from Ziploc Storage Bags," by writing to: Dow Consumer Products Department, P.O. Box 68511, Indianapolis, Ind. 46268.

Here are some easy sandwich and dip ideas with a knack for light noosing in the back yard, park or down the road a piece. The meal-size sandwich is delicious served chilled or heated gently by oven or grill.

Winery mushrooms

- 1 bottle (8 oz.) vinaigrette salad dressing with wine or champagne flavor
- 1 lb. small fresh mushrooms, cleaned
- 1 cucumber, peeled, sliced
- 1 jar (4 oz.) chopped pimiento, drained (optional)

In resealable plastic bag or bowl, combine dressing, mushrooms, cucumber and pimiento. Refrigerate 1 hour to chill and blend flavors.

If desired, can be served in lettuce cup with layers of curly lettuce and red cabbage and radicchio.

Makes six to eight small servings.

Garden Caesar dip

- 1 bottle (8 oz.) creamy Caesar salad dressing with cracked black pepper
- 3/4 cup (about 1 small bunch) lightly packed, fresh cilantro or parsley, washed, with most stems removed
- 1/2 cup (about 1 small bunch) lightly packed, fresh bell pepper, carrot and celery sticks, radishes, asparagus spears, mushrooms and wheels of cucumber and zucchini

In food processor or blender, combine dressing with cilantro. Process until well-pureed and smooth. Can be served in small bowl or hollowed bell pepper with fresh vegetables for dipping.

Makes 1 1/4 cups dip.

Meatless muffaletta

- 1 loaf (about 12 inches) French or Italian bread, unsliced
- 1/2 cup red wine vinaigrette salad dressing
- 1/2 cup nonfat or reduced-fat mayonnaise
- 2 tsp. capers
- 1 ripe avocado, sliced
- 1 cup green Spanish olives, sliced
- 1 can (2 1/2 oz.) sliced ripe black olives, drained
- 1/2 lb. reduced-fat Jarlsberg cheese, thinly sliced
- 4 roma tomatoes, sliced, or about 4 oz. roasted red pepper, sliced
- 3 thin slices red onion, separated

Slice bread lengthwise. Hollow out to within 3/4 inch of outer crust. For less saltiness, rinse olives.

In blender or food processor, combine vinaigrette, mayonnaise and capers until well-blended. Spread mixture evenly on inside of both sides of bread. Layer avocado, olives, cheese, tomato and onion in bottom half. For best results, split cheese into three separate layers. Basil can be cut in lengthwise slivers or placed whole on top of individual sandwich servings. Cover with top half of bread. Press halves together firmly. Wrap tightly in plastic wrap 30 minutes.

To serve, slice in 2- to 4-inch portions. Flavors are best when served at room temperature. For crisper crust, warm uncut loaf in 225° oven 15 to 20 minutes before making lengthwise slice.

Makes six to eight servings.

Swing south for traditional baking

When it comes to Southern cooking, grits are part of the sight-seeing trip. It is wise though to stay on the bus for dessert.

Prudence Hilburn, author of "A Treasury of Southern Baking" (HarperPerennial, $15) says, "I think that Southern cooking will stay alive and well. In traveling about, there is a trend toward getting back to baking more. I think younger cooks are going into more of it."

Baking biscuits, tea cakes, sweets made with buttermilk and sorghum specialties are becoming weekend sport for those away from home during the week.

Hilburn emits the reputed graciousness of Southern cooks — even in a telephone interview from her home in Arkansas. She knows the ins and outs of Southern baking. She took a top prize in the Pillsbury Bake-Off six times.

Her recipes produced nine new stoves through the years.

"One time, when I was hinting about a new refrigerator, my husband found a contest with five national areas where they gave them away. He said, 'Win me one.' It surprised me, but I won."

Her luscious baking ideas run the gamut of Southern style, with coconut cakes, pound cakes, Lady and Lord Baltimore Cakes, quick breads, yeast breads and fruit cobblers featured.

Buttermilk is a repetitive ingredient of Southern cooks because it lends moistness to texture and a tinge of tartness, Hilburn says.

Sorghum is a basic commodity as well, although she admits it is not as readily available in communities outside the South. However, pecans and brown sugar combine to form praline and butterscotch plants to many favorite foods. Many of her coconut recipes came from her mother.

"I use fresh-frozen coconut sometimes, but I've never had a problem with a fresh coconut. I've always heard you could shake them and if you shake them and you hear a lot of juice inside, they should be good. You can taste the milk for sweetness before adding it, if you care to," she says.

She has two iron skillet, but also inherited two iron cornstick pans, as well as a large kettle her father used for making toffee. She suggests those who have an iron skillet to use it regularly for best results. It should be seasoned by greasing or oiling it very well on the inside and then setting it over low heat — no more than 300° — several hours. Any grease that may remain should be wiped out before using the pan. After using it to cook, wipe it out, rather than washing or soaking it in soapy water.

"Tea cakes are just a less sweet cookie, pretty rich, but not very sweet," she says. Hilburn gave them to James Beard in New York when she studied with him in 1983. It represented a Southern food at a surprise birthday party for him.

She developed several recipes that use pie crust mix as a shortcut in making drop cookies. One of them gave her a top recipe in the 1971 Pillsbury contest.

Quick chocolate chip delights

- 1 box (11 oz.) pie crust mix
- 1/4 tsp. baking powder
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/4 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 pkg. (6 oz.) semisweet chocolate chips

Preheat oven to 375°. Before starting, line cookie sheets with aluminum foil.

In large bowl, combine pie crust mix, baking powder, eggs and brown sugar. Beat until well mixed. Stir in walnuts and chocolate chips. Drop by teaspoonful on prepared cookie sheets, spacing about 2 inches apart. Bake in preheated oven eight to 10 minutes. Immediately remove cookies from foil to cool on rack. Makes about four dozen.

Head east for ethnic variety

New York City is a world within a country. Its food stems from a series of ethnic strongholds that are as diverse as the individuals who form its small and large communities. Molly O'Neill's "New York Cookbook" (Workman Publishing, $17.95) recently won the top cookbook award in the American category from the International Association of Culinary Professionals. It culminates five years of effort by the New York Times Magazine food columnist.

"New Yorkers show an ornery perfectionism to their cooking," she says. "They are very demanding and particular. The food tends to be very sophisticated and authentic to what its roots are. There are so many ethnic groups, it is hard to see one dominating."

Right now that food is moving into the mainstream and Caribbean pepper sauces are showing up on supermarket shelves. She expects food from Eastern Europe to move out of the neighborhoods soon.

"This is just not static history," she says. "There is a consistent pattern. An ethnic culture would arrive. Ten years later it could be found in the trendy restaurants."

She likes the city's attitude.

"Despite what New Yorkers say, they are among the most open-minded people that I have ever met," she says. "Their weekend diet is routine for them, but they tend to be interested, rather than judgmental, about new things."

The book is never-ending with 450 recipes and stories. Its best reviewer might be the Statue of Liberty, who has kept watch over the new people and their taste buds as they arrived in this country.

The recipe of Mohamed Jennah, a native of Marrakesh, Morocco, for carrots can be made ahead of eaten cool or at room temperature as an appetizer or even a main event for a light meal on a hot summer night. It improves with aging about two days and can be doubled or tripled.

Mohamed's marvelous Marrakesh carrots

- 1 lb. whole carrots, peeled, trimmed
- 1 tbsp. fresh lemon juice
- 3 tbsp. olive oil
- 1 tsp. paprika
- 1/2 tsp. cumin
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 tbsp. minced fresh parsley

Place carrots in pot of cold water over medium heat. Bring to boil. Cook 10 to 15 minutes until soft but not mushy. Drain. Cool under cold water.

In medium bowl, whisk olive oil into lemon juice to make vinaigrette. Whisk in paprika, cumin, salt and cinnamon. Cut carrots in bite-size dice. Add to vinaigrette and toss. Stir in parsley. Season with more salt or spices to taste. Makes four servings.

Old-fashioned Southern tea cakes

- 4 cups self-rising flour
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 cup shortening
- 1/2 cup milk
- 2 eggs
- 1 tsp. vanilla

Preheat oven to 425°. In large mixing bowl, combine flour, sugar, shortening, milk, eggs and vanilla. Beat until well-mixed. Batter will be sticky and thick.

Divide in two or three portions for easier rolling. Work with one portion at a time. Spoon out each portion of dough into well-floured surface. Sprinkle a little flour on top of dough and carefully form into disk. Do not add too much flour unless a crisp cookie is preferred. Roll about 1/4-inch thick.

Cut with 3-inch cookie cutter; exact rounds are not necessary. Place rounds about 2 inches apart on as many greased cookie sheets as available or line cookie sheets with parchment paper. Bake in preheated oven 7 to 10 minutes until lightly browned on top. Cookies will be slightly darker around edge.

Remove to rack to cool. Store in airtight container.

Moderate amount of beef makes flavorful meal, eating

Get real. It is time to stop labeling foods "good" or "bad." The outlook of health professionals and other Americans has helped change the national perspective on nutrition and redefine new, more realistic eating guidelines.

Eating is an overall process, not to be judged on a crumb-by-crumb measure of fat, cholesterol and fiber.

Eating a little of this and a little of that, or eating lots of foods in moderation, gives everyone an opportunity to enjoy a variety of wholesome foods. Healthy diets do not require special foods. They rest on smart food purchases, preparation techniques and cooking methods—whether the food is eaten at home or away from home.

Lean beef is an example of a tasty, nutritious food that can be served in a variety of convenient ways.

Beef contains relatively low levels of fat, sodium and cholesterol, yet a high amount of iron which is absorbable by the body. Combined with other healthful foods, it can be part of well-balanced meals that require little fuss after a busy day.

Beef's inimitable flavor does not need much dressing up. A little imagination results in tasty meals.

Sliced lean beef can be tossed with pasta or salad in light, appetizing recipes. Low-fat beef cooking methods include grilling, poaching, stir-frying, broiling and roasting.

A nutritious dish that is ideal for a quick family meal or casual entertaining is Grilled Butterflied Roast, served with grilled or steamed vegetables. After marinating, this healthy entree can be prepared in just 10 minutes.

An Italian-style dinner might include this roast prepared with grilled eggplant, plum tomatoes, onions, red and green bell peppers, mushrooms and zucchini. For a healthful twist on ratatouille, try lightly brushing the vegetables with Italian salad dressing before grilling.

Grilled butterflied roast
3 lb. beef eye round roast, well trimmed
1 cup dry red wine
2 tbsp. red wine vinegar
2 tsp. coarsely-grained mustard
2 tsp. oil
2 cloves garlic, minced

1½ tsp. sugar
1 tsp. coarsely ground black pepper

Combine wine, vinegar, mustard, oil, garlic, sugar and pepper in small saucepan. Bring to boil. Reduce heat. Simmer 5 minutes. Cool. Remove ½ cup marinade. Refrigerate.

To butterfly roast, make horizontal cut through center of roast to within ½ inch of other side. Open like a book. Place in plastic bag. Add larger amount of marinade and turn to coat meat. Close bag securely. Marinate in refrigerator 6 to 8 hours, or overnight if desired, turning occasionally.

Remove roast from marinade. Grill over medium coals 20 to 25 minutes, turning and brushing occasionally with reserved marinade until roast is done rare to medium. Let stand 15 to 20 minutes before carving.

To serve, cut lengthwise through center of roast to separate in thin slices. Carve each piece in thin slices.

Makes four (3-ounce) cooked, trimmed servings per pound. Broiler directions: To broil, place butterflied roast on rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is 5 to 7 inches from heat. Broil 20 to 25 minutes for rare to medium (140° to 160°), turning once and basting with reserved marinade.

FREE CONSULTATION

Ask Dr. Rapoff

Dear Dr. Rapoff,

I work as a receptionist answering and talking on the phone all day and I am having a lot of neck pain especially on the side that I answer the phone on. Any suggestions? M.M.

Dear M.M.

Your condition is a common one. People who talk on the phone for any extended period of time throughout the day, usually do have complaints of neck, shoulder and mid back pain. The reason is simple; you usually trap the receiver between your ear and the top of your shoulder, right? This causes the muscles on that side to tighten eventually spasm and cause pain. What should you do? While at work I suggest you try some very easy motions: (1) roll your neck in a circular motion first clockwise then counter-clockwise for a total of 2-3 minutes; (2) shrug your shoulders as if to touch your shoulders to your ears. Do this and then release them to the normal position a total of 10 times; (3) rotate each arm at the shoulder joint both clockwise then counter-clockwise for a total time of 2-3 minutes.

The easy motions performed twice per day at the office will help stretch the affected muscles and diminish the discomfort. If these stretches do not help, I suggest that you contact your Doctor or Chiropractic for an appointment to rule out any other conditions that may exist. Good Luck!

A Mammogram: A Picture That Could Save Your Life

One in nine women will develop breast cancer at some point in her life, but mammography can help you beat the odds.

If someone told you that simply having your picture taken could save your life, would you do it? Of course. A mammogram, which can detect breast cancer in its earliest stages, is just that — a picture — an x-ray of the breast that can save your life.

Memorial's Mammography Center offers state-of-the-art diagnostic equipment and skilled personnel for complete screening services and test interpretation by board-certified radiologists in a private, comfortable and convenient setting. Memorial's program is accredited by the American College of Radiology and recognized by the American Cancer Society as an ACR-accredited facility. This means Memorial's Mammography Center maintains the healthcare industry's most recognized accreditation for consistently following strict guidelines for low-dose, high-image quality.

Don't fear the results of a mammogram. With today's effective treatment options, up to 90 percent of women with breast cancer can beat the odds when it is found and treated early.

For an appointment or more information about this cost-effective, life-saving exam, call Memorial's Mammography Center at 233-7750, extension 5065.

Can Pharmacist's discovery help food lovers lose weight?

WASHINGTON — "Depriving yourself of the foods you love to eat is no way to lose weight," says pharmacist Dr. William Morris, Director of National Dietary Research. Food lovers must learn that the secret to meaningful weight loss is not in decreasing the amount of food you eat, but in reducing hidden fats. NDR has introduced a publication and low fat, compact, chewable food tablet that help you to lose weight without giving up all your favorite foods. "The publication is free when you purchase FOOD SOURCE ONE, an NDR breakthrough in nutritional weight control. FOOD SOURCE ONE is a nutritious and delicious pre-meal snack that can replace the high fat portion of your meals. Although individual weight loss varies, some people are experiencing extra-ordinary results with FOOD SOURCE ONE. A Niagara Falls, New York woman lost 75 pounds without giving up chocolate and pizza which are two of her favorite foods."

Old-fashioned romance charts course of 'Map of Human Heart'

By Harry Hamm
Correspondent

Few movies have the courage to tell an old-fashioned love story. "Map of the Human Heart" is a notable and successful exception, although the word "off-beat" might also apply.

Written and directed by Vincent Ward, "Map of the Human Heart" is about a young Eskimo boy, named Avik, who is befriended by a British cartographer, played by Patrick Bergin. The year is 1881.

The mapmaker takes the boy, who suffers from tuberculosis, with him back to Canada when he flies from the lad's frozen arctic village. The boy is left at a sanitarium to treat his illness. While there, he strikes up a puppy-love friendship with a half-Indian, half-French girl his age named Albertine.

Albertine as an adult is played by Anne Parillaud. "Map of the Human Heart" then traces the lives of both Avik and Albertine. Avik (played by Jason Scott Lee as an adult) becomes a crew member in a bomber for the Royal Canadian Air Force during World War II. His squadron flies out of the English countryside.

Albertine takes a position with the British Royal Air Force as an intelligence specialist who analyzes photos from bombing raids. When she comes across Avik's photo, it leads to a reunion and a series of events over the next 20 years that bring "Map of the Human Heart" to its soapy but enjoyable finale.

The special effects and dramatic posturings in "Map of the Human Heart" take some forgiving. Neither represents realism very well.

But this picture has a heart and some very appealing performances, especially from Lee and Parillaud, who breath real spirit and emotion into "Map of the Human Heart." They make it an enjoyable film to see, especially for couples.

Scott Base Air Show June 13

The Air Force's Thunderbirds and the Army's Parachute Team the Golden Knights will take to the skies again this year during Scott Air Force Base's 1993 Air Show June 13.

The Thunderbirds will perform one show while the Golden Knights are scheduled to perform two shows during the free, one-day event.

Besides these aerial demonstrations, the public is invited to come out and watch other aircraft in flyovers and demonstrations; visit display aircraft, many of which saw action in Operation Desert Storm; and cool off at any of several refreshment booths.

This year, the Thunderbirds are celebrating 40 years of flying as a demonstration team. Since its inception in 1953, the Thunderbirds have graced the skies in 56 foreign countries and have visited every state in the union countless times.

Gates open at 7:30 a.m. and there is plenty of free parking available.

You can also get a weekly update on what's happening by calling the air show hotline at 256-4174.
